Daily Quote...

"On Social Security, after weeks of road trips by the president arguing the need to address the issue, the public's urgency paradoxically dropped a bit. The number who say it's extremely important for Congress to deal with Social Security this year fell to 37% from 41% in early February. For the first time, a majority oppose his plan to add investment accounts even if the poll question doesn't mention it would mean a reduction in guaranteed benefits."
